

BLOUINARTINFO

Kate Shepherd: Battlezone at Anthony Meier Fine Arts

BY BLOUIN ARTINFO | FEBRUARY 03, 2017

Kate Shepherd, Mosquito, 2016, Etching ink and enamel on wood panel, Diptych, 36 x 24 inches each (91.4 x 61 cm), 36 x 48 1/2 inches overall (91.4 x 123.2 cm)
(Courtesy Anthony Meier Fine Arts)

RELATED

"Kate Shepherd: Battlezone" runs through February 17, 2017 at Anthony Meier Fine Arts, San Francisco.

VENUES

Anthony Meier Fine Arts

ARTISTS

Kate Shepherd

This is an exhibition of new paintings and sculpture by New York based artist Kate Shepherd. Titled Battlezone, the show foregrounds a new method of composition in Shepherd's work. Known for her complex networks of delicate lines rendered on highly reflective surfaces, this new work shows Shepherd materially reinterpreting her production. In place of her signature brushwork, these new paintings exploit marks made with transferred inks. The title of this exhibition, Battlezone, refers to an early arcade game that featured green and red wireframe graphics on a black ground, drawn in one point perspective. Shepherd borrows and builds upon this reductive visual language to make images in dialogue with the palette, taking part in its nostalgia, its graphic relation to night-vision and its references to battle.

Kate Shepherd: Battlezone runs through February 17, 2017 at Anthony Meier Fine Arts, 1969 California Street, San Francisco, CA 94109.

For details, visit: www.anthonymeierfinearts.com