

LIVING

Outdoor sculpture, concerts and 9 other Best Bets this weekend

BY MELISSA HOWSAM

FEBRUARY 28, 2020 06:45 AM

Leonardo Drew, "City in the Grass," is a massive outdoor sculpture made of wood, cotton, canvas, paper and steel. It was first exhibited in 2019 at Madison Square Park in New York City. It will be assembled at the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh, NC. HUNTER CANNING MADISON SQUARE PARK CONSERVANCY

Listen now

07:09

March is upon us. Spring is nigh (Amen!). And whether you fete Women's History Month and all the "yes she has" with the Carolina Ballet's Celebration of Female Choreographers or solve a "Whodunit" at a cocktail party with the Canes, there's plenty to keep you entertained across the Triangle this week.

LEONARDO DREW

Now on view at the North Carolina Museum of Art, the colorful monumental outdoor sculpture "City in the Grass," contemporary artist Leonardo Drew, composed of aluminum panels covered in a mosaic pattern of colored sand, mimicking a Persian carpet, and spanning over 100 feet long and 30 feet wide is a must-see. "Drew's first major outdoor sculpture, is both an abstracted cityscape and a colorful flying carpet," according to press notes. For more of his "gravity-defying sculptures," look out for the accompanying in-depth gallery exhibition, "Leonardo Drew: Making Chaos Legible" slated for April 4 through July 5 in the Meymandi Exhibition Gallery. NCMA, Ann and Jim Goodnight Museum Park, Ellipse, 2110 Blue Ridge Road, Raleigh. Through Sept. 7.

ncartmuseum.org